

THAT'S LIVING

□ Balford Henry

Lady Bustamante returned home recently after a visit to Canada to launch her memoirs.

The function was held at the Jamaican Consulate in Toronto and hundreds of Jamaicans turned out for the function.

One moving moment of her visit was the occasion on which Carmen Charley-Green, the first cook at Jamaica House in the 1960s when her husband, the late National Hero, the Rt. Excellent Sir Alexander Bustamante was Prime Minister, renewed acquaintances with her.

Lady B was excited to find that Mrs. Charley-Green had kept as a souvenir the recommendation which she had given her some 30 years ago, which enabled her to get her first job in Canada.

Sherine Anderson, the teenaged film star who shot to prominence with her role as Audrey Reid's eldest daughter in the film "Dancehall Queen," has been moving on.

After getting nine passes in the CXC at Wolmer's Girls School, the young lady quit high school to enrol at the Jamaica School of Music. She is doing the Caribbean and Latin American and Jazz Study course. She is doing voice as a major and piano as a minor under guitarist Maurice Gordon.

Sherine started at the JSM in September. By the end of the month, however, she was back where she really wants to be, in the studio recording.

She has recorded her first single, "It's Not About Him," an original she wrote. The song is produced by the famous rhythm twins, Sly Dunbar and Robbie Shakespeare, and which will be released by year end on their Taxi label.

She had previously been connected with Mikey Bennett's Grafton Music, but refused to go into any details about severing her links with Grafton, however, simply saying, "It just didn't work out."

Lady B launches memoirs in Canada

Lady Bustamante, seated left, looks at Mrs. Charley-Green's copy of the recommendation she gave her 30 years ago as her cook, while Paula De Ronda, organiser of the book launch in Toronto, is at right.

However, he says he will be returning to work with the committee as he wants to inspire those celebrations to be the biggest ever.

Well, that makes sense.
