CHARLES (HYATT) Actor, writer, comedian, director and a radio and television broadcaster. The diminutive multi-talented Charles was born in Kingston on February 14, 1931. In his early years he received his education at Windward Road, St. Michael's, St. Aloysius' Schools and St. Simon's College. He has had the unique distinction of making nine consecutive appearances in the locally produced Pantomimes. A winner of an Arts Council Drama Scholarship. Hyatt went to England to attend the Theatre Royal as the result of a scholarship that enabled him to make numerous television appearances on both BBC and ITV for which he received wide acclaim. Apart from these TV appearances Charles performed alongside several of the top Hollywood stars in feature length films, including "The Comedians", starring Richard Burton; "Cross Plot", with Roger Moore; and "Love Thy Neighbour", which is soon to be released. Charles is married and the father of four children.
