Dear Colleagues,

The Department of Library & Information Studies notes with regret the passing of Mr. Ken Ingram, a distinguished scholar-librarian, who has made a sterling contribution to the profession in so many different ways over these many years. His ground-breaking work in the area of Caribbean bibliography will continue to serve present and future generations for a very long time and his outstanding service in the many other aspects of librarianship made him the consummate professional.

Mr. Ingram also taught part-time in the Department for a while where he gladly shared his wealth and breadth of knowledge with the students and was known for his careful attention to details, his quiet unassuming manner and his diligence in discharging his responsibilities as lecturer.

He has set extremely high standards of excellence for service in the profession that it would do us well to emulate as one of the best ways of paying tribute to his work, his scholarship and his character.

Our sympathy goes out to his dear wife and other family members as they mourn his passing.

May his soul rest in peace.
