

TRIBUTE TO BOB MARLEY is the title of this ceramic carving of Jamaican reggae music superstar Bob Marley, done by Paul Stephens, who is holding it. Paul, 18, is a former student of Camperdown High School in Kingston. Paul told the Gleaner he worked on the carving on and off for about two months, under the supervision of his tutor, Mr L. Campbell, art and craft teacher at Camperdown. He was motivated to do the carving, Paul said, after the controversy about the Ralph Gonzales sculpture of Bob Marley. Mr Campbell said that Paul is strong working in clay and with his drawing. He would love to see Paul's potential develop at somewhere like the Jamaica School of Art, but Paul's chances of getting there without a scholarship or some form of sponsorship, are very thin.
