

Albert Huie's paintings

Albert Huie portrays the calm and serene aspects of nature, which he approaches objectively, and not in accordance with the dictates of fashion. His compositions are carefully balanced; their planes and lines creating a harmonious rhythm. He can also capture the subtle nuances of the quickly changing light, as it flashes and dies away in the evening, or else as it gradually suffuses the sky early in the morning. Mellow colours applied in small particles produce vibrant textures of great beauty.

Huie is also an outstanding portraitist, and his work in this field demonstrates a penetrating insight into the character of his sitters. "Aunt Fran" is a fine example in this category, and in "Early Morning" one observes a fleeting moment in nature, which has crystallized as if by magic. The two pictures were shown in the recent exhibition of the Jamaica Arts and Crafts Society at the State Theatre.
